and chemist shops who is playing without any licence or corporation licence throughout the country.

29. Thus we all are consumers in the literal sense of the term. When we approach the market as a consumer, we expect value for money, i.e., right quality, right quantity, right prices, information about the mode of use, etc. But there may be instances where a consumer is harassed or cheated.
30. The Government understood the need to protect consumers from unscrupulous suppliers, and several laws have been made for this purpose. We have the Indian Contract Act, the Sale of Goods Act, the Dangerous Drugs Act, the Agricultural Produce (Grading and Marketing) Act, the Indian Standards Institution (Certification Marks) Act, the Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, the Standards of Weights and Measures Act, etc. which to some extent protect consumer interests. However, these laws require the consumer to initiate action by way of a civil suit involving lengthy legal process which is very expensive and time consuming.
31. The consumer Protection Act, 1986 was enacted to provide a simpler and quicker access to redressal of consumer grievances. It is interesting to note that the Act doesn't seek to protect every consumer within the literal meaning of the term. The protection is meant for the person who fits in the definition of 'consumer' given by the Act.
32. To create awareness among the general public to fight against Corruption and crime and terrorism activities. trust can inspect or verify violation of human rights and also fight against national interest activities fight against all kinds of anti social activities and all kinds of illegal activities.
33. Propaganda against corruption, through Print/Electronic Media Camps, Membership drive. To fight against Communal and anti-national forces.
34. To make awareness of the youth for the national spirit and promote them to work for the safeguard of the nation.
